Introduction

The Steele Wizard Tarot was designed and illustrated by yours truly, Pamela Steele. Major and a Minor Arcana distinguish the tarot. This refers to the suit cards (wands, cups, swords and pentacles) as being the Minor, or lesser, magic and the Major Arcana as the greater magic. Unlike traditional tarot decks there are four additional court cards, one for each suit and six additional Major Arcana cards. This brings the total cards to the Master number of eighty-eight.

The Steele Wizard Tarot court cards are comprised of a Page, Maiden, Knight, Queen and King for each of the four suits. Also with each suit are the numbered cards one (Ace) through ten. This brings each suit card number total to fifteen.

The Major Arcana traditionally has twenty-two cards. The Steele Wizard Tarot deck has the Weaver, the Universe, Truth, Evolution, Soul Twins and I AM in addition to the traditional tarot. These cards were designed to give more clarity in the reading. In reading tarot it is always important not only to identify the challenges and issues but also to offer advice on how to change course if it seems necessary or prudent. Remember, the only prophecy written in stone that has any credibility exists in the Great Pyramid of Giza. And that is open to interpretation! As a reader it is your responsibility not only to interpret the cards but to also remain objective. Make no judgment and relay the message as clearly as possible.

The Steele Wizard Tarot is designed to function as an intermediary for communication between the various aspects of Self. This helps the individual function as a Whole Being. Ethics dictate that each Seeker (the person asking the question) receives a clear and concise reading. The reading is to help the individual identify and 'win' their Personal Power. Readings help uncover hidden issues and shine light on areas of strength.

As tarot readings are very personal, I prefer no one other than the person I am reading for be present during the reading. Each reading takes approximately 45 minutes to one hour. I also recommend that my clients wait a minimum of three months between readings. If they have specific questions they would like to have answered I encourage them to write them down. If these questions are not answered in the initial reading they can be addressed immediately following the reading. The energies at work will be most receptive at that time.

The meanings of these cards are titled 'Guidelines' on the following pages. As you become more proficient with your readings you will find 'explanations' sort of popping into your head or you may see pictures in your mind's eye. Trust your instincts! These feelings and pictures are your Soul speaking to you.

So what, you may ask, if the cards are all reversed and there is no good news? Remember even what we may judge as 'bad' news can be a blessing. If a person is aware that their present choices are leading them into a disastrous situation, you can find a way to help them reevaluate their priorities, observe the situation and change their minds. This is good.

Remember that it is always your Highest Self that makes the Best Choices.
